What Is PRP Hair Treatment?

PRP Hair Treatment is a minimally invasive procedure in which platelet-rich plasma — derived from your own blood — is injected into targeted areas of the scalp. Concentrated growth factors nourish hair follicles and support the natural hair growth cycle.

- Non-Surgical
- Your Own Platelets
- Minimal Downtime
- Natural Rejuvenation

Who Can Benefit?

PRP Hair Therapy may be suitable for individuals experiencing hair thinning or early-stage hair loss. A detailed hair and scalp assessment is conducted before treatment.

Male Pattern Hair Loss

Receding hairline and thinning crown

Female Pattern Hair Loss

Diffuse thinning and reduced density

Excessive Hair Fall

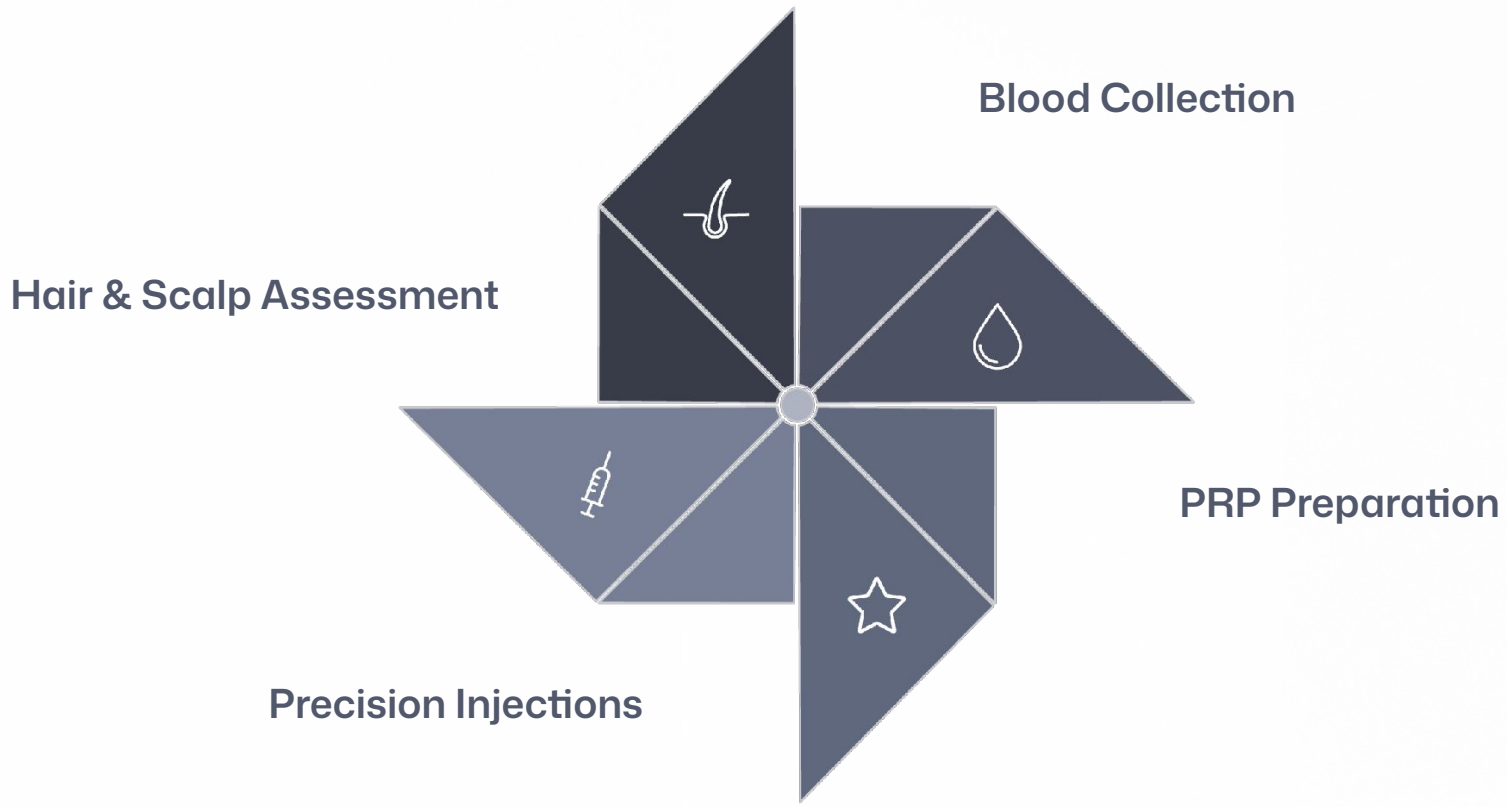
Weak roots and increased shedding

Poor Scalp Health

Early hair loss and thinning

How Does PRP Work?

A small blood sample is collected and processed using a centrifuge to separate platelet-rich plasma, which is then injected into targeted scalp areas to nourish follicles and support healthier hair growth.



Each treatment protocol is customized according to individual hair concerns and goals.
